Not illustrated. 1905 Excerpt: . . . and two caeca joining posteriorly to form a terminal ampulla. The oesophagus, surrounded by small glands, is constricted at its middle, and divides, just anterior to the acetabulum on which rests the posterior sucker, into the two caeca which run along either side of the body. Three anastomoses of caeca were made out. The excretory system ends in an excretory pore which is subterminal and ventral. The nervous system has not been satisfactorily determined. The reproductive system consists of a lobular testicle or testicles, vesiculi seminales, vas deferens, and genital pore with its sphincter, opening centrally into the gynaecophoric canal behind the posterior sucker. A distinctive feature of this schistosome is the absence of ciliated warts on the integument, the presence of which constitutes so marked a feature of the African worm. Minor anatomical differences are: (a) smaller size of the worm; (b) its longer vas...
