Not illustrated. 1808 Excerpt: . . . of their profession: many clergymen, whose sermons are the most inconsiderable part of their compositions: and several gentlemen of the inns of court, who, instead of driving the quill over skins of parchment, lead it through all the mazes of modern novels, critiques, and pamphlets. Many likewise have embraced this profession, who were never bred to any other: and I might also mention the many bankrupt tradesmen and broken artificers, who daily enter into this new way of business, if, by pursuing it in the same mechanical manner as their former occupations, they might not rather be regarded as following a trade, than a profession. The second of these professions is a player. The ingenious gentlemen, who assume the persons of the drama, are composed of as great a variety of characters as those they represent. The history of the stage might afford many instances of those, who in the trade of death might have slain men, who have condescended to deal counterfeit slaughter from their right hands, and administer harmless phials and bowls of poison. We might read also of persons, whose fists were intended to beat the drum ecclesiastic, who have themselves become theatrical volunteers. In regard to the law, many, who were originally designed to manifest their talents for elocution in Westr minster-hall, have displayed them in Drury-lane; and it may be added, on theatrical authority, that Not een Attorneys have this rage withstood, 1 Bat changd their pens for truncheons, ink for...
