Excerpt from Dwelling Houses: A Code of Suggestions for Construction and Fire Protection, Recommended by the National Board of Fire Underwriters New York, to Safeguard Homes and Lives Against the Ravages of Fire The National Board of Fire Underwriters has received many requests for construction specifications which will properly protect dwelling houses against fire. This pamphlet has been prepared in response to such inquiries, and is addressed directly to owners of dwellings and to carpenters and builders who erect them. The majority of dwellings are outside the control of building ordinances, and those within the jurisdiction of such laws usually have but few restrictions; hence the field for use of this information is broad. The few specifications governing dwelling house construction in a Building Code are usually so scattered through the ordinance it is difficult for a person unfamiliar with such laws to ascertain exactly what is required. That fact further justifies codification of these well established principles for the protection of such structures. The pamphlet is distinctly educational in character, since naturally there is no authority...
